Larry was a missionary for two and a half years (December 1961 to June 1964) for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. His mission was in France and Belgium. While in Europe he traveled, and attended the 1964 24-hour Le Mans Sports Car race held in June.

Larry took an interest in racing in his youth. He became a professional race car driver. He drove a Corvette that was twin-turbocharged, having 1250 horsepower that gave it distinction. His races included a sports car race under International Motorsports Association (now affiliated with the American Le Mans series).

Larry has been a C.P.A. for forty years. He owns the Stephens Accountancy Corporation, where his specialty is taxpayer defense work before the I.R.S. He estimates that he has saved his clients over 50 million dollars in taxes, penalties, and interest. Larry is on the board and CFO of Club Donatello in San Francisco.
