Stanislaus County Healthy Marriage Coalition

HEALTHY
MARRIAGE COALITION

Jim Stewart – Stanislaus County Healthy Marriage Coalition

~by John Freeland - Quality of life starts with family. Families are the foundation of our community. Marriage is a key component of family life. Strong marriages are an important component for building a healthy society. Jim Stewart tells us that the Stanislaus County Healthy Marriage Coalition’s mission is to promote healthy marriages in our community. Healthy Marriage Coalition seeks to strengthen marriages in our community through education, both before and during marriage. Its vision is to give couples a chance to have a great marriage.

The benefits from a healthy marriage flow beyond the couple. It extends to their children, to their extended families, and to those who interact with them in the community. Healthy marriages serve as an example for others. Studies show that children from parents who have a healthy marriage are healthier mentally and physically, have greater success in school, are more likely to marry, and less likely to suffer a divorce once married.

Not a government agency, Healthy Marriage Coalition seeks to build bridges in our community to promote its goals. Jim says churches are in the forefront of the healthy marriage education effort. The coalition trains pastors and church leaders to teach techniques for a healthy marriage. The coalition offers individual and couple mentoring as well as low-cost community classes designed to strengthen marriages. This includes marriage enrichment and relationship skills training.

For more information, check out Healthy Marriage Coalition’s website at www.stancomarriage.org or give Jim a call at 209-606-0772.
